The editor is indebted to Mrs. Wm. H. Thomson for a bouquet of the finest roses he has ever seen. Of all the flowers in field or garden, he "loves them best of all." Mr. T. is a fancier of the queen of flowers and banks of them adorn his elegant "Valley Home."

The announcement of J. C. Horn, of Bellevue, for Representative, will be found in the column devoted to that purpose. Mr. H. is an old resident and a good Democrat, and too well known to need further recommendation from the REGISTER. His friends will take good care of him.

Mr. T. E. Moore, superintendent of the screen factory, left Monday for Hillsdale, Michigan, to be absent during the summer months. Mr. Moore is a most affable and genial gentleman, whose many friends here always regret his departure, and are correspondingly pleased, when he returns in the fall.

Last Sunday evening, Mr. August Rietke, assisted by his amiable better-half, entertained a few friends at his residence in North Ironton. With music, conversation, and refreshments, the evening went rapidly by, and the midnight hour came all too soon for the guests, who will not soon forget the occasion.

The Hon. William R. Edgar is to be congratulated upon the calm, manly fight he made for the primary before the State Committee. A party of half-dozen Irontonians, under charge of Mr. H. M. Collins, went over to the "Valley Home" last Tuesday evening, where they were elegantly entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Thomson. A little music, vocal and instrumental, some social discourse, an excellent and timely lunch, and mayhap a mint julep or so, to round up the occasion—all these made the evening to be enjoyed. Long live the genial host and his fair consort!

Married—At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Prestidge in Texarkana, May 22, 1900, Miss Minnie B. Kelly, daughter of Conductor Geo. H. Kelly, of Jackson, Mo., to Mr. W. S. Meadows by Squire Smithers. The bride and groom left on Wednesday for Lane, La., where a warm reception awaited them by a host of friends at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lane's. After doing justice to the elegant dinner that awaited them, they went sight-seeing over the large plantation of Mr. Lane's.

The Republicans of Iron county met in this city last Saturday and nominated the following county ticket: Representative, Wm. H. Webb; Collector, G. B. Phillips; Treasurer, W. W. Heywood; Judge—western district—John S. Luthy; Judge—southern district—John Crowley; Sheriff, John Jones; Prosecuting Attorney, Wm. D. Bay; Assessor, Geo. H. Russell; Coroner, N. A. Farr; Public Administrator, John T. Baldwin; Surveyor, A. H. Eaton. The good Democrats of Iron county will take care to see that the ticket is magnificently "snowed under" November next.

In the announcement column will be found the name of Mr. Alexander McKenzie, who has entered the race for the Democratic nomination for Representative. Mr. McKenzie though a young man, is well and favorably known over the county. Born and reared on a farm, he did not have the advantages that favor the more fortunate in obtaining an education, but he applied himself to the means at hand and to-day is known as a teacher of no ordinary ability and attainment. At present he is employed as principal of the Annapolis public school. He is emphatically a self-made man of character and probity, and should be prove successful in the coming year, reflect no discredit upon the people he seeks to represent in the legislature.

Thos. L. Whitney, a well-known farmer living on the gravel road, asks us to warn the Iron county candidates. Mr. Whitney lives in Iron county near the Madison county line; in fact part of his farm is in Madison county. He says that all during the planting season he has been greatly annoyed by the crows. On a score or more of occasions he has taken his gun intending to destroy some of the troublesome birds. But every time he went out, he was ready to shoot a Madison county candidate appeared on the scene, and he has been afraid to shoot for fear of killing the candidate instead of the crow. The primary campaign in Madison county terminated last week. Now Mr. Whitney thinks he can kill some crows if the Iron county candidates do not become too numerous.

West End Copper Prospect.

Ed. Register—I herewith submit my report upon the copper and lead lands belonging to the Black River Mining Company. The property is situated in the county of Iron, State of Missouri, in and about twelve miles northwest of Ironton, which is on the Iron Mountain and Southern Railroad, seventy-six miles from St. Louis. The country is undulating, with hills from one hundred to three hundred feet in height, with valleys suitable for agricultural purposes. The roads are in fair order. This valuable mining property is situated on Shut-In Creek, a tributary of Black River. Here the stream winds its way through a narrow gorge or canyon at the base of two large mountains which form a Shut-In. Here we find a large number of mineralized quartz veins varying in width from six inches up to six feet, cutting through a porphyry or granite rock. The mother vein is seen cutting through this formation at the base of two large mountains, crossing the creek from one mountain into the other, with two well defined walls which has been traced over three miles along its course through this property. Here we have a series of veins with the mother vein running nearly parallel with the creek for a distance of about one-half a mile until it reaches the head of the Shut-In, and here it is seen crossing the creek and entering the large mountain on the east side of the stream. Here the vein crops out at the base of the west mountain showing a thickness of not less than six feet. The quartz here is strongly oxidized through the decomposition of the iron and copper pyrites. Here we have the green and gray carbonate, and yellow sulphure of copper also iron pyrites. See plat; also samples accompanying this report. The mother vein from this point south for a distance of one-half a mile runs along on the side of the west mountain a distance from its base from a few feet up to five hundred feet.

About one-half a mile south from where the vein crosses the creek at the point where the gray copper is found, there is quite a number of veins from two to four inches wide, in places almost solid galena. These veins run nearly an east and west course striking directly towards the mother vein, and no doubt they are offshoots of the mother vein. The course of the mother vein is northeast and southwest, and vertical. The course of the small veins are nearly east and west. They must form a junction with the mother vein; the mother vein cropping out as it does on the mountain sides above the base, with the small veins cropping out in the creek bed, and in the bluffs at the base of the mountains, striking directly towards the mother vein.

There is no doubt but rich ores of lead and copper exist in paying quantities at the junction of these veins. These are deep-seated, true fissure quartz veins, and will as depth is attained produce rich ores in large quantities. The veins are situated so that mining can be carried on by tunnelling and shaft work. If a drift is driven in on the lead vein a distance of about two hundred feet it would reach the mother vein at a vertical depth of about one hundred and twenty feet. No doubt lead ore will be discovered in paying quantities.

The veins marked on the accompanying plat, as you will observe upon examination of the quartz specimens which came from the out-croppings of these veins, are all well mineralized with lead, yellow sulphure, green carbonate, and gray copper ores.

These samples came from each vein. There is plenty of timber for all mining and building purposes on the property, with a fine water power for all purposes. Taking into consideration the immense mineral bearing veins, its cheap labor, cheap fuel and the small expense, to open up this property, with its large vertical, true fissure veins, its nearness to market, and other advantages that this property contains, there is no doubt but it is of great value.

Very respectfully submitted,
THOMAS BEARD,
Mining Expert.

Hetty Green at Home.

"Hetty Green, 'The Richest Woman in America,'" writes Mitchell Hodges in the June Ladies' Home Journal, "lives modestly in two small flats in a brick block in Hoboken, New Jersey. There are two electric push-pells at the door, under each of which one finds the name 'C. Dewey.' Mrs. Green prefers that the public should not know where her home is situated, and she uses this name because her pet dog's name is Dewey, and she commonly calls it 'Cutie.' The parlor is in the lower suite, and is a little larger than a good-sized closet. A couch, a small table and two chairs are the furnishings and the ornamentation is quite as simple.

"Mrs. Green is a rapid talker. Words seem to come to her as easily as dollars. She is witty, too, and these gifts, with her remarkable memory and pleasant voice, make her an excellent conversationalist. Her daily routine is more severe than that of any living millionaire, perhaps. She rises early, eats a light breakfast in the little dining-room of the Hoboken flat, and hurries off to the ferry. It is only a short distance from her home to the slip, and she always walks, be the weather what it may. Her husband, E. H. Greene, who is seldom seen or heard of, is an old man, almost eighty, and somewhat of an invalid. The upper one of the two flats is called his, and there, in a plainly furnished sitting-room, he sits day in and day out while his wife is in New York looking after financial affairs. When she comes home in the evening—it is always late—she sometimes reads to him."
